How is this product distributed?

Distribution channels

The PayrightPlus Loan Product is designed to be distributed through the following channels:

- Via accredited Payright Merchants according to their standard sales processes –face-to-face in-store, or over the phone).

Distribution conditions and why they are appropriate

The PayrightPlus Loan Product is subject to all the following distribution conditions:

- The PayrightPlus Loan Product:
 - Can only be distributed via Payright Merchants accredited to offer PayrightPlus Loans to their customer.
 - Payright accredited merchants sign up to a distribution agreement with Payright which obligates them to meet certain standards and requirements set by Payright.
 - A customer must be seeking to purchase goods or services from a PayrightPlus accredited Payright Merchant and finance that through a PayrightPlus loan at point-of-sale.
 - Payright Merchants cannot offer PayrightPlus to customers if their sale method involves unsolicited sales, sales to consumers or sales to customers not at their business premises (such as door-to-door sales).

This allows Payright to direct the distribution of its product to customers of Payright Merchants whom it believes meet the description of the Payright Target Market. Payright selects its PayrightPlus accredited merchants carefully before accrediting them to ensure their sales practices are appropriate and suitable to be financed via a PayrightPlus Loan. PayrightPlus Payright Merchants are assessed and trained by Payright to ensure they can appropriately offer PayrightPlus at point-of-sale to their customers in line with consumer needs.

- All applications for the PayrightPlus Loan Product must be made by the customer to Payright, online through the Payright application portal but always via the Payright Merchant at the point-of-sale.
- Application data submitted by the customer is then assessed by Payright according to its credit decisioning logic to determine whether the data supplied by the customer meets the eligibility requirements of Payright's Target Market.

This method of distribution enables Payright to control the application process and direct the distribution of its product to people who are seeking an amount of credit to support their purchase from a Payright Merchant and whose application data indicates they can meet the required repayment terms and that they fall within the Payright Target Market for its PayrightPlus Loan Product.
